

An award-winning writer, director, and producer, Pat Battistini brings over thirty years of television, film, and stage experience to the set. Starting his career in Chicago, he has made stints around the world. His dedication to the craft on stage and in front of the camera has enabled his directing skills to lead to positive relationships and communication with actors. Many actors Pat has directed have received numerous stage and screen nominations and awards. Pat served as the Festival Director of the Los Angeles Sports Film Festival for seven years.